LV_NEO / FILE N° 87-404 / CONFIDENTIAL

OPERATION ATELIER 404

08:14. Margaux Fontenay cuts a seal unopened since 1987. Inside, a capsule by Janus — legendary underground Paris fashion creator of the '80s — stopped eight days before it shipped, by a workshop that vanished three months later.

01 / THE DISCOVERY

A crate sealed since 1987

THE FIND
Margaux Fontenay, Heritage Archivist, opens crate SC-87-114 while digitizing the Asnières archive. Seal intact since receipt.

THE CONTENTS
Sixty finished pieces: matte strié leather patched against thermoformed vinyl, padded in geometric blocks, cut asymmetrically on purpose.

THE HOLD
Authorisation withheld 8 October 1987, no reason entered. Black Monday lands eleven days later. The crash is the alibi, not the cause.

THE CATCH
Janus signed the work and registered the workshop. The court wound it up in January 1988. After that date, nothing carries his name.

YOUR MISSION
Revive what Janus couldn't finish, as Louis Vuitton — and ship, in 2026, the vitrine it never had.

EXPECTED SUCCESS
By curtain: a live local site, accessible and on brand — the 2026 revival of a capsule that never shipped in 1987.

02 / THE EVIDENCE BOARD

Exhibits from the crate

Six exhibits. Generous about the object, silent about everything else.

A / THE MANIFEST
Sixty pieces, two colourways, one redacted category — and the withheld authorisation.

B / THE PRINTS
Four instant photographs. The object, the workroom, three unnamed faces, one word in marker.

C / MARGAUX'S LOG
Two days of work. Every answer she finds opens a worse question.

D / THE LEGAL MEMO
Tomasz Veldt, IP Counsel. Three conditions, and a warning about the man.

E / THE PATTERN BOARD
Kraft templates and foam seams. How it was built, in one hand, in French.

F / THE LIQUIDATION
Court bulletin, Jan 1988. Names the company, counts 59, registers nothing.

FOLLOW THE RECORD
Every invented detail should trace back to a real gap in the crate. Confirming the name does not confirm the man, the cause, or the product.

03 / THE CLOCK & THE TABLE

One capsule. Three acts. Six cells.

Brief & art direction → scaffolding → components & content → styling, A11Y & polish → local demo. AI champions circulate to unblock you.

ACT I / UNCRATE — 1 HOUR
Revive the capsule as Louis Vuitton: universe, wider line, audience. Scaffold the repo, vibe-coding style. AI checkpoint: architecture review.

ACT II / RECONSTRUCT — 2 HOURS
Build the site the crate never got. Content, components and accessibility — together, not in sequence. AI checkpoint: code audit. Expect a call.

ACT III / REVEAL — 1 HOUR
Polish, audit, push, rehearse. AI checkpoint: final review and Lighthouse score. The jury meets a revival nobody shipped.

05 / WHAT MARGAUX LEFT ON THE TABLE

Four holes in the record, two rules

WHERE JANUS WENT
Eleven worked there, three are in the print, the court names the firm's manager. Janus signed the work, then the trail stops.

WHY IT STOPPED
Eleven days before the crash, three weeks before the insolvency. "No motive communicated."

WHAT IT WAS CALLED
Category redacted. The inventory gets as far as ASYM-P and stops. Name it yourself.

THE 60TH PIECE
The workshop counted 59 out. The archive counted 60 in. No transfer note either way.

RULE ONE
Say it's a guess when it's a guess. The jury rewards honesty over confidence.

RULE TWO
Disclose the 2026 fiction where a visitor will actually read it, not in a footer.

06 / THE HANDOVER

What you hand in at curtain

REVEAL: build, audit, deploy locally — and tell the story.

L1 / CONTENT
Hero copy, product text, alt text, meta SEO — AI-assisted, house-voiced.

L2 / CODE
A working, accessible React site on your team's GitHub repo.

L3 / PROOF
GitHub Actions: code quality and Lighthouse score, not a claim.

L4 / DEMO
A 2–3 minute local walkthrough and pitch to the jury.
